ST. PETERSBURG'S VIEW.

Conflicting Reports as to the Situation at Port Arthur.

Kuropatkin's Forces.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, August 24.—So far as can be ascertained, no further news of the progress of the fighting between the beleaguered fortress has been received except that contained in reports from foreign sources. These latter are conflicting and some of them represent that the Japanese assault has become exhausted, and others claiming that the Japanese have captured Eisekhan fort, belonging to the western line of defense. If this position has been taken and occupied, it is realized that the Japanese are in a position to breach the chain of forts will be breached and the position of Port Arthur rendered critical. The report, however, is considered as requiring confirmation.

Reports that General Kuropatkin is about to make an important move, continuing to be circulated, but the character of the move is not hinted at.

As the reports from the front agree that the rains have ceased and that the roads are drying, a resumption of military activity is expected.

Since his retirement from Simouehung near the Yangtze Pass, it is estimated that more than thirty-five thousand reinforcements have reached General Kuropatkin.

SATOLLI ON AMERICA.

THE CARDINAL GREATLY PLEASED WITH HIS VISIT TO THE UNITED STATES.

ROME, August 24.—Cardinal Satolli and his party arrived here to-day from Naples. The cardinal returns to Rome not only satisfied, but charmed, by his visit to the United States. He said:

"From one corner to another, everywhere, I was received with great respect and the most cordial hospitality from all classes of the people, Catholics and non-Catholics alike. I was especially pleased with my visit to the St. Louis Fair, where I remarked two particular things. The large place given to educational matters and the great space given to the Philippines, with feelings of admiration, esteem and confidence in the progress and growing prosperity of the United States.

"While I feel for America a degree of affection and gratitude which will accompany me throughout my life, I must say that today the United States have a delicate and grave task to perform before the civilized world, namely, to educate the Philippines to a new social and political life, rendering them more advanced in economic prosperity, which may grow very fast, considering the immense variety and richness of their products, while watching that their civilization has remained as unchangeable as the mountains, and become a worthy daughter of the great American Commonwealth, which the Philippines did not intend to be, but to undertake a high civilizing duty."

DEFIED THE OYSTER NAVY

Police Boats Go to Make a Survey and Are Forced to Retire.

GAVE WARNING BEFORE HAND

Names of Ringleaders Taken and Oyster Navy Retires Without Having Fired a Shot.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

ONANCOCK, VA., Aug. 24.—Recently Dr. John W. Bowdoin, president of the Board of Fisheries, went on the police steamer Rappahannock, with County Surveyor Rudiger to Tangier Island to lay off two hundred acres of crabbing and natural oyster ground, granted to Mr. Joshua Crockett, of Tangier. The inhabitants of the island are very bitter against the decision of Board to rent the grounds, and had notified the president that there would be trouble, as the police steamer Rappahannock carried the Rapscallions, both being armed with rapid firing cannons. It seems that this piece of land is about the best in the water, and has been used for time immemorial by the old men and boys of the island. Many protests had been sent to the Board against the leasing, but the Board, on the other hand, was met by forty boats and one hundred and fifty men, who quietly told the State's officers that they would resist any effort to work the grounds and proceeded to pull up and destroy the stakes as fast as they were put down. Dr. Bowdoin, after taking the names of the most prominent ring leaders, abandoned the effort, and retired from the scene with all his force without firing a shot. The police boats were on his part for no doubt, actual battle and killing of unarmed citizens would have occurred.

PEAL OF BELLS FROM BLACK SEA TO BALTIC

household troops, Lieut.-Gen. Hesse, both superbly mounted and uniformed in glittering equestrian statues. Following the coach came an armed escort with poised lances, of the famous blue Cossacks of the Don, of which the baby picture in the most prominent of the chief. The man and horse of this platoon guard was groomed to perfection, the very ideal of the wild, light cavalry of the Russian steppes.

The procession passed through the palace to the church. There was an anti-climatic waiting, rooms. The royal saloons were filled with a most brilliant assemblage, the ladies of the court, all in sparkling jewels, the officers resplendent in the gorgeous uniforms of the Empire. Amongst the guests were many persons in quaint and curious national costumes, some of them attending the founding of the northern capital on the banks of the Neva.

The Smiling Emperor.

The Emperor, his face wreathed in smiles and with the Dowager Empress on his arm, led the procession followed by the other members of the imperial family, the grand dukes and grand duchesses in the order of their rank, the baby bringing up the rear, the youngest of all.

The Emperor met at the door of the church by the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg, with raised cross. But here the Emperor retired, as the rules of the orthodox church give him no place in the ceremony, in which the baby was presented by his spiritual parents to the heavenly father.

Inside the chapel were assembled M. Pobedonosteff, Procurator General of the Holy Synod, and the members of the Holy Synod, the diplomatic corps, with whom was Ambassador McCormick and other guests from every court in Europe.

The christening party gathered at the jewel-crusted font. The baby was carried by Princess Galatin and the cushion which it was borne was supported by General Belokobyl and Prince Dolgorouki, aide-de-camp to the Emperor.

The sponsors represented an emperor and empress, two kings, one princess and four grand duchesses. The baby was so shrouded in filmy lace, dainty flannels and a purple silk overmantle that it was almost impossible to distinguish the form that lay so still and quiet as the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg anointed his hands, breast and forehead with the mystical holy oil compounded for the purpose in solemn secrecy at the Kremlin.

The Baby Yelled.

But when the moment came to complete the immersion in the warm water of the font, the royal infant showed its humanity by a lusty yell, which echoed through the chapel and was greeted by a murmur of amusement and approval as being a sign of luck and good augury for the future.

The Te Deum melodiously chanted by a hidden choir, was the signal to the bells overhead, which swung clamorously, while from the royal yacht, off the shore of the gulf, thundered a salute of three hundred and one guns. The signal was taken up at once by the guns of St. Petersburg, Moscow, five hundred bells chimed while the guns of the Kremlin rolled.

As the message sped forth from the fort to the town the Emperor entered the city.

chapel and mass was celebrated. During the singing of the Psalm, His Majesty conferred on his heir the cross of the Order of St. Andrew, a tenderly draped and distinguished ribbon around the baby's shoulder.

Congratulations were pressed on the father throughout the crowded length of the salons, where the baby passed, now the head of the royal party, next in rank to the Emperor and Empress.

Breakfast at the great palace completed the ceremony. In making the round of the diplomatic corps the Emperor displayed especial cordiality towards Ambassador McCormick.

The baby, with the most prominent of the Petrof palace and the city of St. Petersburg were illuminated. There was an extensive display of fireworks in both places, and a free performance was given at the Imperial Theatre.
